AT THE RACES.

THE LAST DAY OF REGULAR MEET-ING OF THE JOCKEY CLUB.

The Pleasant Weather Brings Out Large Crowd to Witness the Flyers-The Details of Yesterday's Races-Points from the Paddock.

The last day of the regular meeting of the Washington Jockey Club attracted another big crowd to the track. It was better racing weather than the past few days, and the crowd appreciated this fact. as was shown by the attendance. The grand stand was well filled, and the gay toilets of the ladies added to the pleasure of the occasion.

Five races were on the cards, four on the flat and one over the hurdles, and all of them were good betting races. There will be an extra meeting of three days, commencing to-morrow.

First Race-Jester, a 2-year-old colt belonging to the Morris stable, was thought a good thing in the first race and carried the bulk of the money. Stiletto filly was well played also. The horses got away well together, Stiletto filly and Aristocrat leading into the stretch, when the Morris colt moved us and wen easily Stiletto.

leading into the stretch, when the Morris colt moved up and won easily, Stiletto filly second and Aristocrat third.

Second Race—A good field faced the starter in the six-furlong dash. Rustic was made the favorite and the others divided the money in the place betting. Silence and Silent got off together, the latter making the pace until the turn, when Silence moved up and galloped down the stretch, winning by half a length, Silent being beaten for the place by Louise in the last half furlong.

Third Race—The Faust handicap was the best betting race of the day. Low-lander was a prime favorite, alternating with Fleve, and the winner, Lotion, selling at 20 to 1 and at times better. Corticelli made the pace, with Lowlander sec-

One of the most attractive nooks in this section of the city is that portion of the Smithsonian Grounds west of the Na-tional Museum and south of the Institute building. The young trees have just reached that age when their folinge takes on the freshest green. The frame building and cages of the young zoo give the scene a rural appearance, and the emerald stretches of lawn, of which there is a genrous area, heighten the pastoral effect.

Viewed from B street this morning, with the gaudy museum building kept out of sight, the scene was especially restful and pleasant. Just beyond the animal paddock three mowers swung their scythes with that steady rhythm which harmonizes so well with nature's quiet moods. The buffalos, moving with ponderous deliberation, loomed up from the middle distance, and it would only have required the tinkle of cow bells, the rooster's shrill challenge, and a hay stack or so flung in with artistic abandon to or so flung in with artistic abandon to make one almost believe that he had been transported to a veritable farm.

Another spot which is well worth a visit by lovers of the picturesque is the southwest corner of Ninth and B streets, just beyond. Here is located the commodious residence of Mr. Frazer, with its wealth of surrounding foliage. The house itself is almost completely covered with ivy, and rises from a billowy mass of plants and shrubs and trees, with inof plants and shrubs and trees, with inof plants and shrubs and trees, with in-tertwined vines and beautiful blossoms in their season, presenting a unique and de-lightful appearance, which never fails to attract and hold the attention of the sightseer when he passes that way for the first line.

There are probably few people aware that South Washington can boast of a bicycle manufactory. But such is the fact. It is located on Water street between Tenth and Eleventh, and is run by the Washington Cycle Company, of which Mr. F. D. Owens is the manager, and Mr. W. E. Smith the superintendent. The company is entirely a local one, and all their designs and patents belong to Washingtonians. They will be turning out bicycles in about a month that will compete with the best manufactured, and it is their intention to make the plant as large and complete as any in the world.

and complete as any in the world.

The five brick dwellings which Mr. C. C. Smithson is erecting on G street, between Four-and-a-half and Sixth streets, are almost completed.

Mr. John Barnes led the services at Rescue Mission last night.

Mr. F. C. Severance, who it was expected would lead the services at Gospel Hall to-night, will not be present owing to sickness.

In all Virginia, in truth, none in all this country, has shown the remarkable progress that has characterized the history of the city of Roanoke. Barely nine years ago it was a little village hamlet, with but three or four hundred population. To-day it is a big, bustling, growing city of 30,000. It was not an Aladdin's lamp or any mysterious agency that effected this unparalleled change. It was simply the existence and propinquity of enormous natural resources and the beginning of their development. To-day furnaces, foundries, machine shops are in operation, furnishing employment to thousands of skilled mechanics and workmen. Millions and millions of dollars are invested there. Immense mines of iron ore and coal are being opened and their treasures are being poured into the lap of the city. One of the greatest manufacturing cities of this great country has its foundation at Roanoke and its superstructure will there be exected. ress that has characterized the history of its superstructure will there be erected.

This is all preliminary to the statement This is all preliminary to the statement that there is now an opportunity offered to citizens of Washington to share in the profits arising from this great development. The slightest investigation will be convincing. A dollar judiciously invested now will return many fold. #### EAST WASHINGTON.

THE CITIZENS' MEETING. Baum's Hall, corner of Fourth and East Capitol streets, did not contain as large a number of the citizens of the East End as was desired last night, but the small attendance did not is any way pre-nteresting one.

To this association belongs the credit of To this association belongs the credit of having secured a number of improvements and as a number more are needed it would not be a bad plan for the citizens to turn out in full force at the next meeting and to take action on the condition of various streets, lights, etc. Many improvements are needed and when the attention of the authorities is brought to bear upon the subject through the East Washington Citizens' Association good results are expected. Among the more important improvements are: Repaying Fourth street south of C, the regrading and paying of Virginia avenue from Eighth Fourth street south of C, the regrading and paving of Virginia avenue from Eighth to Second street, the necessity of a street sweeper more than once or twice in a fortnight, the lighting of K street east of Eleventh street, the relaying of portions of the A. & P. R. R. tracks, the grading of G street east of Eleventh, the concreting of E street which is the route to Congressional Cemetery and which street is now badly in need of repairs, and several others.

At the meeting last night the most im portant subject discussed was the validity of the census returns of 1890, and from the enthusiastic manner in which several the enthusiastic manner in which several members participated in the debate it is evident that East Washington is dissatisfied. Mr. A. F. Sperry read an interesting communication from Mr. A. F. Childs, the acting superintendent who stated that the population of the section known as East Washington, which was embraced within squares 608 to 1170, is 47,436 by last census, and of the outlying territory, 9,301.

Mr. Weller called attention to the re-Mr. Weller called attention to the remarkable discrepancy existing between the police census of 1887 of the outlying county and the Federal census of 1890. According to the former the population was 10,176, while by the latter, taken three years later, it is only 9,361.

That the population of the county has decreased by nearly a thousand Mr. Weller could not believe. He referred to the wonderful growth of the yarjous suburbs.

After discussing at some length the manner in which members had been treating the association by non-attendance Mr. Sperry directed in a set of sharply worded resolutions that the president and executive disband the standing commutees and that new ones be appointed on which persons who would attend to their duties be assigned.

Messrs, Weller, Dawson, Babson, Clarke and others then discussed the manner in which transfers were issued by the Metwhich transfers were issued by the Met-ropolitan Street Railway. The meeting then adjourned for one month.

What with cooking, art and musical schools and clubs our Seventh and Eighth grade pupils are kept busy and content. The Methodist Home for Aged Women, pleasantly situated upon Twelfth and N streets northeast, near Kendal Green, is in a prosperous condition. Miss Woodward, until recently a teacher in the Maury School, has resigned, and has accepted the secretaryship of the Wimodaughsis.

Preparations for the big celebration are still going on, and in a very short time the committee will be able to report some progress. Persons desiring to aid the enterprise financially can do so by sending donations to Mr. James H. Douy or to Judge Armstrong. This celebration will only need good weather to make it one of the finest of its kind ever seen in this section of Maryland or Virginia. No pains tion of Maryland or Virginia. No pains will be spared to make it one long to be remembered, as with the co-operation of other secret organizations it can but be a success. As to the selection of the orator of the day there seems to be some doubt, as some favor Judge Armstrong, while some favor Colonel Frisbie.

The Epworth League are making the final preparations for their entertainment. The singing promises to be unusually fine as the lads and lassies are being drilled nightly, and all being the possessors of fine voices, the success of the affair is insured. Mr. George W. Ray, who has been sick for the past month with rheumatism, is reported better. Mr. David Grunnel died suddenly yes-terday evening at 6:30 o'clock. He was sitting at the table eating and fell out of the chair dead. He was 54 years of age.

The beautiful home of Mr. Thomas E.
Waggaman, 3200 O street, was thrown open to members of the Medical Association last night, and from 8 to 11 o clock there was a constant stream of visitors. In Washington there is not a finer private art gallery than that of Mr. Wasgaman's, and at the request of Dr. Patterson and other local physicians he welcomed all who desired to review these splended works. Drs. DeWitt C. Patterson, J. H. Bern real E. H. vett and a recombined H. Bryan and F. Hyatt acted as reception committee. When the visitors first en-tered the residence they were conducted into the dining room where a splendid supper was served and afterward were shown up to the gallery.

About 5 o'clock last evening a young man by the name of Tom Weightknight fell at the corner of Thirtieth and P streets and injured his head. With the assistance of Officer Curren he was carried to his home, No. 530 Twenty-ninth street, and placed in the care of friends.

Mr. William Laird, jr., cashier of the Farmers' and Mechanics' National Bank, has tendered his resignation, to take effect on June 1. Mr. E. P. Berry was elected cashier, Mr. C. W. Edmonston as assistant cashier, Mr. A. C. Avery, paying teller and Mr. G. F. Auld, receiving teller.

Stand-Gossip of the Game. Comiskey's men won the second game rom the Nationals yesterday in a contes that was so one-sided as to be barren of nterest, and that in so far as the local eam was concerned was distinguished orincipally by what it failed to do, either ndividually or as a whole. The men seemed to lack the spirit which should should have imbued them and played in an indifferent manner that called forth many demonstrations of disapproval from the spectators. Especially was this so in the case of several of the players. They were listless both in the field and at the bat, and every action showed a desire to shirk the work for which they are em

The story of the game is quickly told. The men from the Mound City piled up fourteen runs, only two of which were carned, on fourteen base hits, which yielded a total of twenty-three bases, being ably assisted by the errors of the local team, not only in the field where they are chargeable, but in judgment, where the recover cannot could explore them. the record cannot count against them.

Carsey, who was pitching, was taken out at the conclusion of the second inning and Mace substituted, although it was not the Californian's fault that his team was so far in the rear. Mace pitched a creditable game, considering the handicap under which he worked. Comisky wisely substituted Neal for Stivetts after his team had the game well in hand, and the former pitched out the remainder of the game in excellent style, only three hits game in excellent style, only three hits being made off his delivery.
